Fabric paintings hand painted and hand stitched by the artist. Yardage is created using water-based, non-toxic fabric paints. The artist then finds aspects of the material which express her design and cuts and sews them into landscapes with particular inspiration from WNC.

Block prints are cut from a variety of substances and prints are hand pulled onto hand made paper.

Artist Bio

A lifelong desire to express the beauty she sees in nature has inspired Meg Manderson to combine her love of the tactile qualities of fabric with landscape art to create "fabric paintings." Manderson has studied with the acknowledged masters of fabric painting and art quilting. She has practiced her art and craft for over 25 years.

She is also an enthusiastic teacher who lives for the moment her students discover the artist within every one of us.

Artist Statement

I am primarily a fiber artist who creates surface designs on fabric which I then employ to make landscapes reflecting natural beauty, particularly that of WNC.

I believe that there is an artist in each of us and that without nurturing this part of ourselves, we do not grow or flourish.
